

Cetacean Summit Hawaii 2014

Increasing our Understanding of Whales and Dolphins – The Cetacean Summit

Bob Emerson - Sarasota , Florida

The Cetacean Summit, an unprecedented conference to be held at the King Kamehameha's Kona Beach Hotel in Kona, Hawaii March 1-5, 2014, promises to approach the human-cetacean relationship from a deeper level of understanding and interaction. If you've always thought that whales and dolphins are special creatures, you are not alone.

The conference brings together a wide range of internationally acclaimed experts who will each share their own perspectives on such topics as whale and dolphin consciousness, spirituality, and emotional and physical healing in the presence of whales and dolphins. The conference will create a fun, dynamic, high-energy and safe setting for participants and presenters from various perspectives and disciplines to learn from each other and the whales and dolphins.

The original idea for the conference was for experts in cetacean-human interaction to meet in order to share among themselves the lessons, insights, healings and experiences they have gained during their decades of varied encounters with whales and dolphins all over the world. The desire to share

During the Summit you will experience the where, what, how and why of cetacean-human interaction. Presenters will explain and share the communications and experiences they have received directly from whales and dolphins. The conference also provides the opportunity for you to directly experience dolphin and whale energy in guided meditations and exercises. In addition, you will have the option to participate in a whale watching and dolphin swim excursions, as well as pre and post conference sessions, workshops or swim trips.

Art by Jean-Luc Bozzoli

Our understanding of the animal world is evolving. Until recently, wildlife experts only discussed animals in terms of physical characteristics and behaviors. Virtually all the animal's actions and reactions were attributed to mating or survival instincts. Thoughts, decisions, complex language and emotions were considered to only be in the realm of human consciousness.

However, today, even mainstream wildlife experts are open to challenging these assumptions, and considering certain animals to be more fully evolved on a cognitive and emotional level. It is now commonplace when watching a wildlife television program for the narrator to postulate if the whales' songs are more complex than just primal mating calls. It is also common for narrators and even some scientists to discuss the complex family relationships and emotional connections between animals. And certainly the old myth that humans are the only thinking, problem solving and tool making creatures has been debunked over and over again.

The Cetacean Summit presenters have been on the cutting edge of discovering and experiencing the depth and breadth of animal cognition, consciousness and spirituality for decades. The Summit is your opportunity to meet and interact with these experts who are on the front lines of cetacean-human inter-species communication. The ability to spend several days in this energy and spirit field is an opportunity that should not be missed.

For more information

www.CetaceanSummit.com

Anne@CetaceanSummit.com